THE LOOK

Sharp. Soft.

One thing clear.
Everything else melts.

A young woman with long, dark, wavy hair is the central focus of the image. She is looking directly at the camera with a slight, pleasant smile. She is wearing a light-colored, possibly white or cream, crew-neck sweater. The background is a busy city street filled with many other people, mostly seen from behind or in profile, creating a sense of a crowded public space. The background is heavily blurred, emphasizing the sharp focus on the woman in the foreground. The overall lighting is soft and natural, suggesting an overcast day.

THAT'S THE MOVIE LOOK

She is sharp. The street is a dream.

Your eye goes where the photo is sharp. That's the whole job.

Swipe to Cinematic.

TURN IT ON

Open Camera. Swipe to Cinematic.

iPhone 13 and later.
Stay on 1x. Skip the ultra-wide.

THE BLUR

Tap the f.
Slide for more blur.

Start around the middle.
All the way left looks fake.

Background close

Almost no movie blur.

Background far

Stand close. Leave space behind.

LOCK ON

Tap who should be sharp.

Busy street? Tap them so the phone ignores everyone else.

PULL FOCUS

Tap to move the story.

Sharp on one person.

Then tap the other.

The phone does the slow shift.

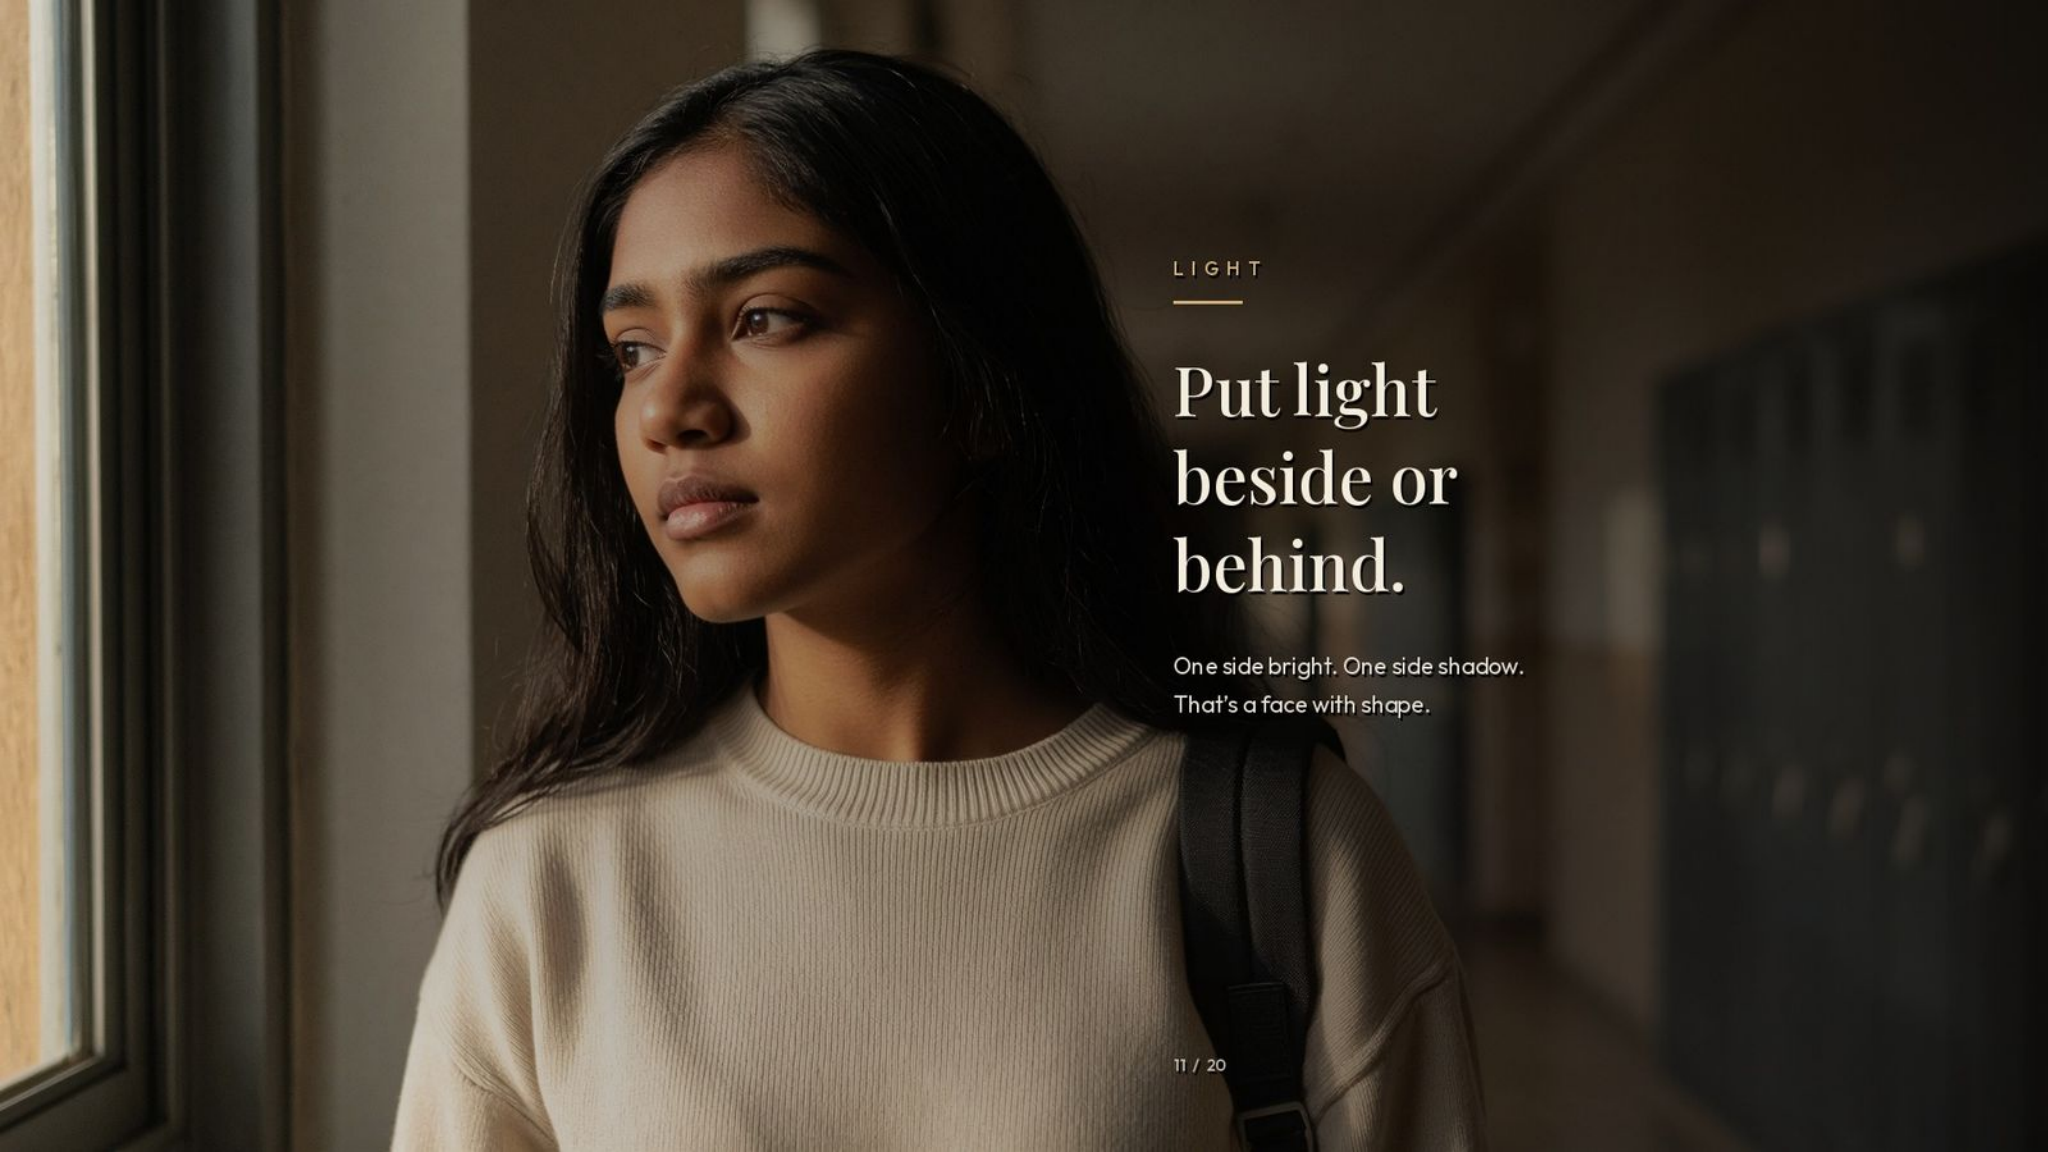

FEEL LIKE FILM

Top right: switch to 24.

Movies run at 24 frames a second.

30 looks like a phone. 24 looks like a film.

A woman with long dark hair is looking out of a window. The lighting is dramatic, with strong highlights on her face and hair, and deep shadows on the other side. She is wearing a light-colored sweater. The background is dark and out of focus.

LIGHT

Put light beside or behind.

One side bright. One side shadow.
That's a face with shape.

A person with dark hair tied in a bun, wearing a dark hoodie, is crouching in a grassy field. They are holding a white smartphone with both hands, framing a sunset in the background. The sky is filled with orange and yellow clouds, and the sun is low on the horizon. In the distance, there are silhouettes of trees and buildings.

WHEN TO SHOOT

Morning. Late day. A window.

High noon flattens faces. Soft light does the work for you.

A woman with dark hair, wearing a dark coat, stands on a sidewalk at dusk. She is looking down a long, straight street lined with bare trees. The street is illuminated by a series of warm, yellow streetlights that recede into the distance. The sky is a deep, dark blue. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

FRAME IT

Don't center everything. Leave space to look into.

Put them on a third. Empty air in the direction they're walking.

CHANGE THE HEIGHT

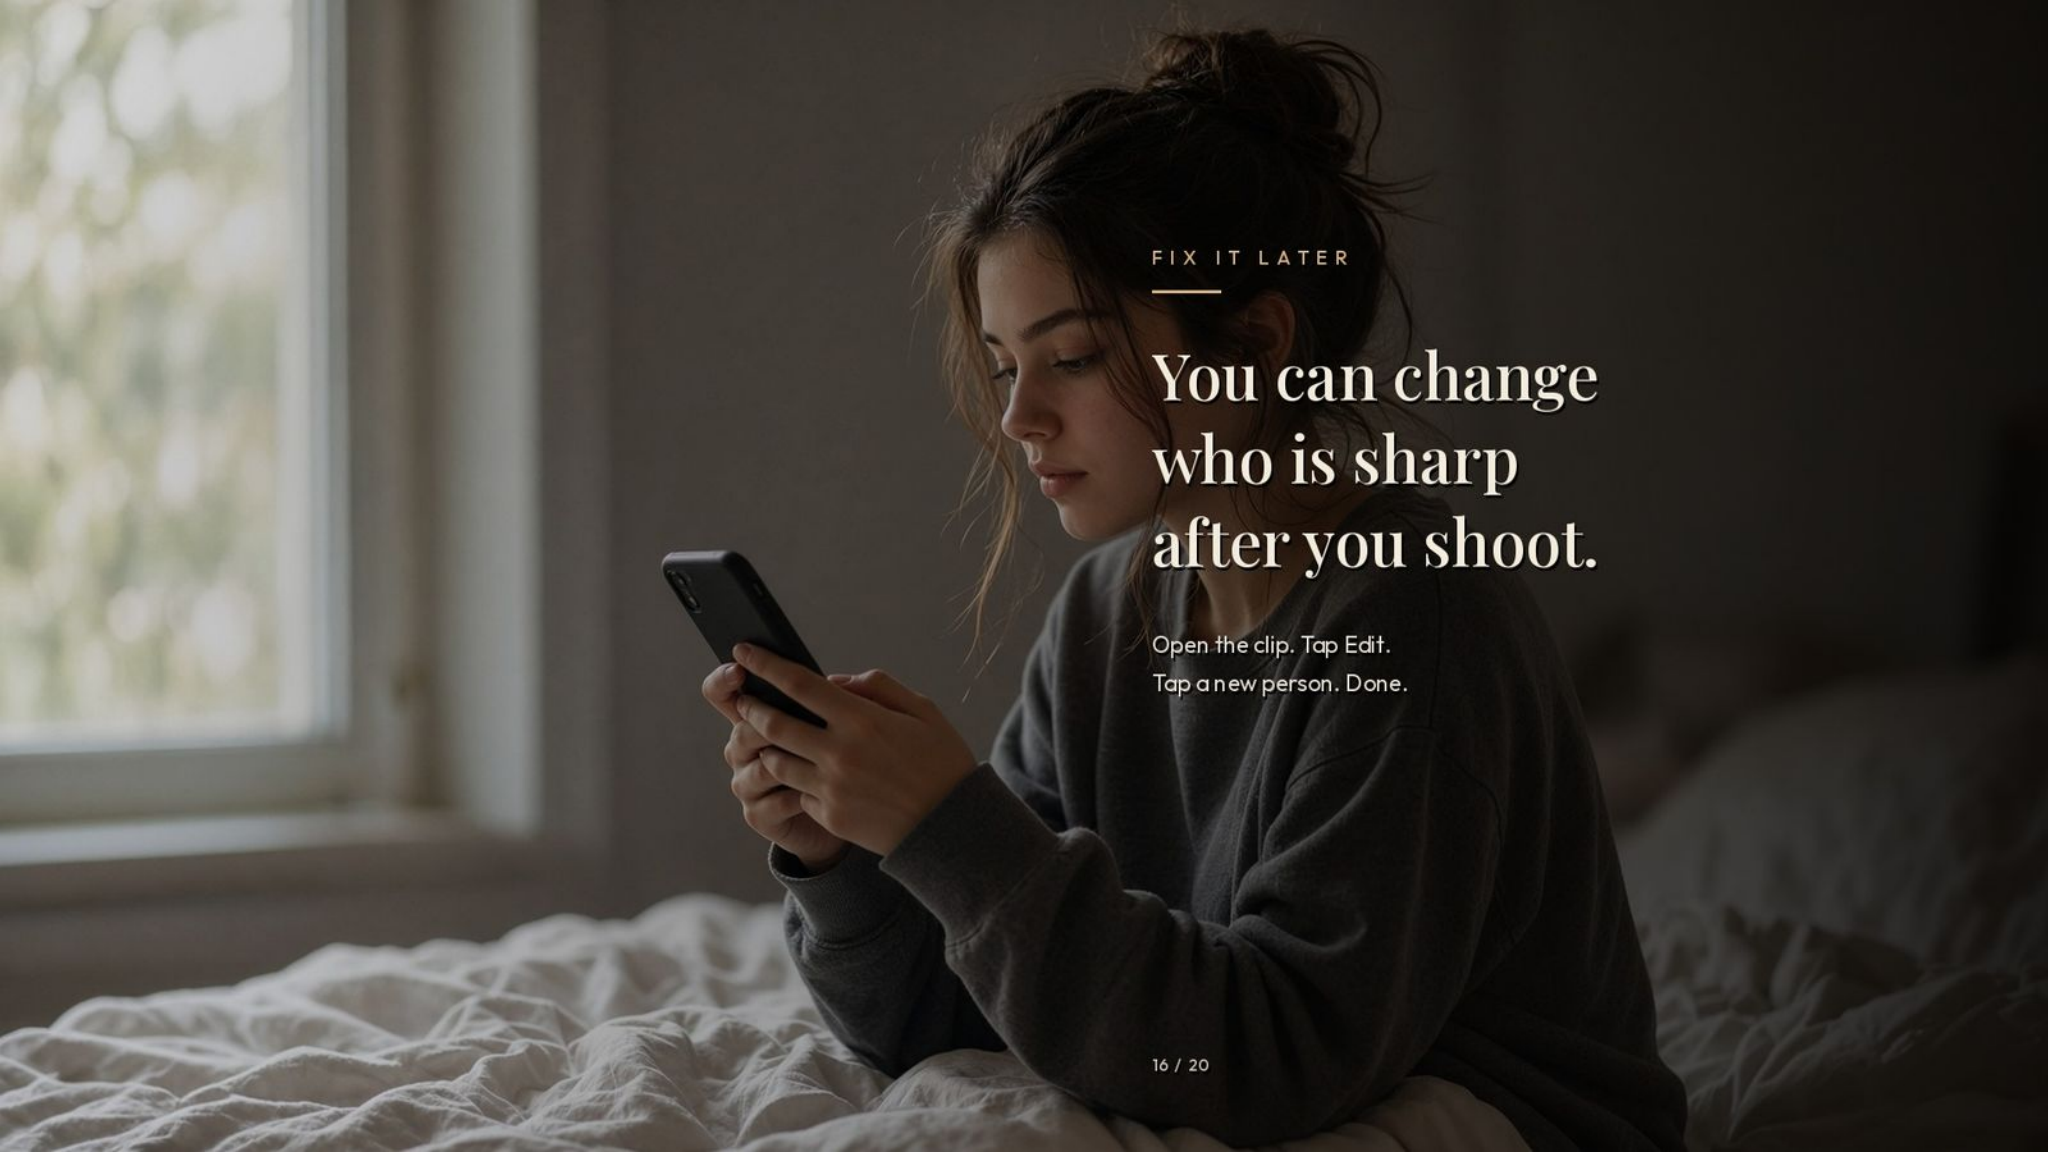

Eye level is boring. Drop it. Look up.

HOLD STILL

Lock your elbows.
Walk slow.

Movies don't shake.

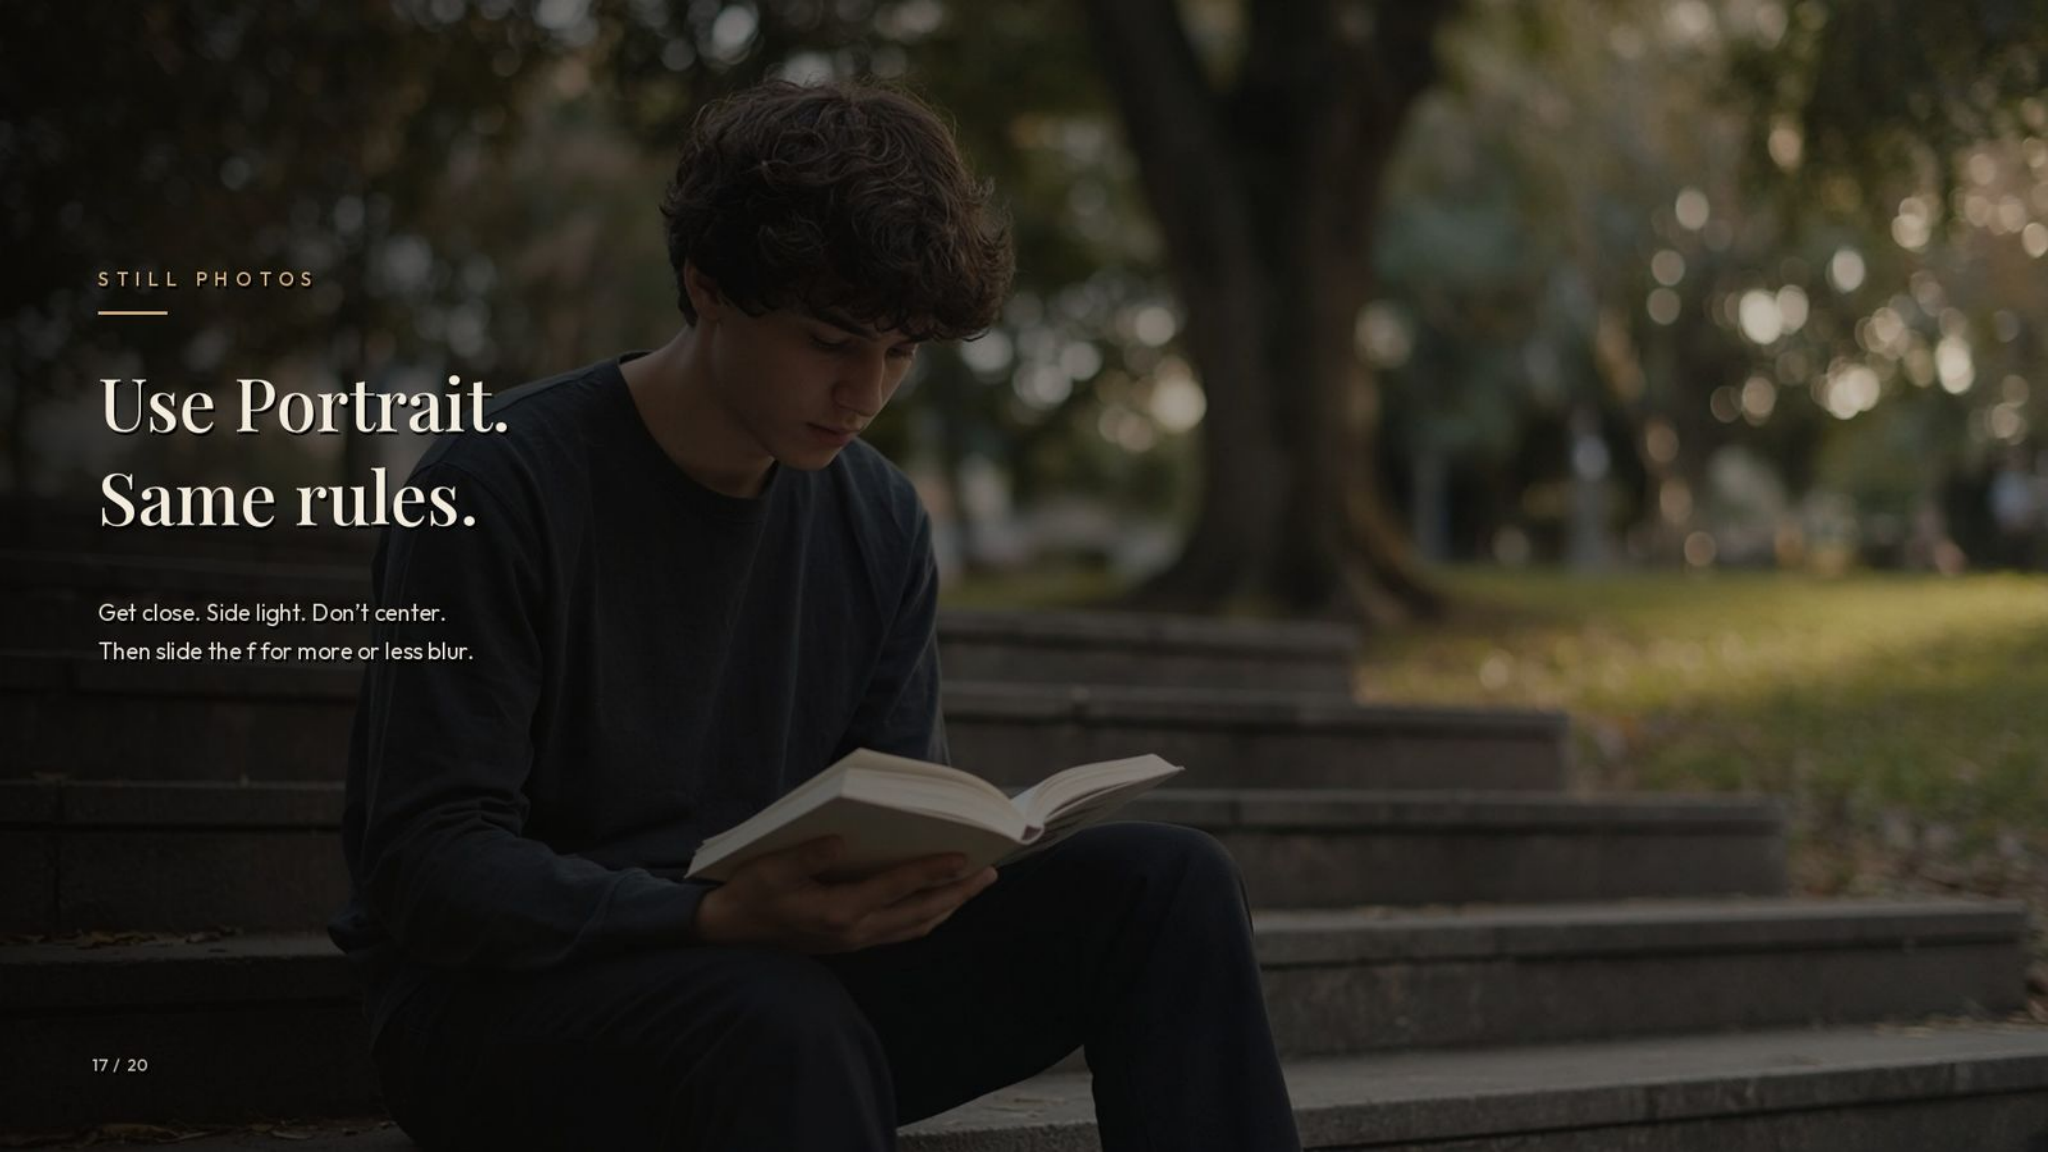

A woman with dark hair tied in a bun is sitting on a bed with white, wrinkled sheets. She is holding a black smartphone in both hands and looking down at the screen. To her left is a window with a white frame, showing a blurred view of green foliage outside. The room is dimly lit, with light coming from the window.

FIX IT LATER

You can change who is sharp
after you shoot.

Open the clip. Tap Edit.
Tap a new person. Done.

STILL PHOTOS

Use Portrait. Same rules.

Get close. Side light. Don't center.
Then slide the f for more or less blur.

KEEP THESE

Seven moves.

01 24
Top right. Film speed.

02 Tap to lock
Who should be sharp.

03 Get close
A few feet from them.

04 Background far
Space behind = blur.

05 Side light
Beside or behind.

06 Don't shake
Elbows in. Walk slow.

07 Edit later
Tap a new person.

A cinematic photograph of two young men walking down a narrow, cobblestone street in a historic town. The man in the foreground is wearing a dark hoodie and looking off to the side. The man in the background is wearing a light-colored hoodie and a backpack, looking towards the camera. The scene is bathed in the warm, golden light of sunset, with long shadows and a soft glow from the buildings and streetlights.

YOUR CHALLENGE

A 10-second story. One tap that changes focus.

Two people. Start sharp on one. Tap the other. That's a scene.

NOW GO
